NOTHING UNLESS CURED.

A Fair Offer Made by Clarke & Co. to All Sufferers from Catarrh.

Clarke & Co. are selling Hyomei on a plan that has caused considerable talk amongst their customers.

The plan is different from that followed by other remedies, but the remedy itself is different also. This treatment for the cure of catarrh has such an unusual record of cures to its credit that Clarke & Co. offer to refund the money if it does not give the desired benefit. This is certainly one of the fairest offers it is doing himself of berself an injus.

Do not suffer any longer with tickling, smarting, burning, eve-watering troubles that afflict those who have catarrh. Hyomei will cure you, but if you should not find it adapted to your case, Clarke & Co. will return y. ur money.

Excitement at Funeral.

A catastrophe was miraculously averted t a funeral at Maysville, Saturday afteroon. Just after the body of James West had been taken from the hearse the horses became frightened and ran away, through the cemetery, tearing down grave-stones, passing through the crowd of mourners, narrowly missing them, and as they were going out the gate the hearse struck a post, wrecking it, tearing the hearse loose, and before they were caught they had run several miles. It is a miracle that no one was injured while the frightened animals were, plunging through the crowd of people.

THE GUATEMALAN ANTS.

They Destroy Cotton Boll Worms and Other Injurious Insects.

Washington, July 16.-O. F. Cook, the discoverer of the Guatemalan boll weevil eating ants, has wired the department of agriculture from Texas that the new ants are destroying cotton boll worms and are attacking similar injurious insects with even greater avidity than they do the boll weevil. Another important fact is that the ants do not injure at all the ladybird larvae, which are beneficial insects. Mr. Cook reports that the agricultural value of the ants now depend chiefly upon acclimitization and rapidity of propagation. These matters are being investigated.

A Wonderful Spider Web.

In the Pacific ocean there is a group of islands called the New Hebrides, where there is a species of spider that weaves. a fine cloth. What do you think of that? The natives place a slight framework in some dark corner where there are known to be spiders, and the little insects immediately take possession of the frame and use it as a foundation for a web, with marvelous results. One cap made in this way by spiders was over four feet ten inches long, and over a foot in diameter at the base.

Where Most Wheels Go Around.

There is no place in the world where the wagon or cart traffic is equal to that of Newchwang. During the winter months, when the roads are firmly frozen, there are not less than 2,000 carts, each carrying two tons per day, coming to the port, each drawn by from four to seven mules or ponies: some of these carts are from 30 to 40 days on the road in order to reach the market.

Bank-Note Paper.

The Bank of England note is not of the same thickness throughout. It is, thicker in the left-hand corner, so as to retain a keener impression of the vignette there, and it is also thicker in the dark shadows of the center letters and beneath the figures at the ends. Counterfeit notes are thus quickly detected, as they are invaiably of the same thickness throughout.

STRIKING BUTCHERS.

Efforts Being Made to Settle the Difficulty.

There is a Hitch in the Negotiations Over the Reinstatement of the Men Who Went Out on Strike.

Chicago, July 15.—The strike which has demoralized the packing industry throughout the country, in which over 40,000 butchers and other workers went out on Tuesday, has not yet been settled.

The hitch in the negotiations is over the reinstatement of the strikers. The union demands that every man who went on strike shall be given his old place before an agreement to arbitrate will be considered. The packers declare that they will retain the men they have employed since the strike and will take back the old men in the order in which they file applications for their old positions.

While the peace negotiations were in progress Thursday additional preparations were being made by the packers at the yards for a long siege. The packers hearing that efforts were being made to induce the railroad men who are members of unions to refuse to handle supplies for the plants where the men are on strike, were busy all day putting in great stocks of coal should the railroads attempt to stop their supply.

Chicago, July 16.—Negotiations for peace in the stock yards strike are practically at a standstill, and the strike will continue until one side or the other abates something of the demands made up to the present time. Chicago, July 18.—There was little if any change in the situation of the meat packers' strike here Sunday. With Michael J. Donnelly, the strikers' leader, in St. Louis looking after that end of the difficulty, there was no effort here Sunday to renew the negotiations which lasted through three days last week and were terminated Saturday night without results. Whether another attempt to reach an adjustment of the controversy by arbitration will be made is problematic as the packers believing they had the better of the argument in last week's conferences, are little inclined to offer any concessions to the strikers. One thing is certain, the packers say, and that is that they will sturned by the flood. not recede from the position they assumed in last week's conferences, and, that the strikers will have to conform to the employers' ultimatum before any of the peace plans looking to a settlement by arbitration will be successful. To add to the packers' determination to stand firm is the fact that they have steadily increased their working force at the plants by the em-of the plants. Under the conditions the packers titude and are more determined than demanded for his release, be paid. pleyment of outside workmen, until

The sticking point to the whole question of arbitration is the reinstatement of the strikers. Mr. Donnelly, at Saturday's conference with the packers, waived every other demand he had made and agreed to order the men back to work, leaving the adjustif the employers would take back all they say it would mean the disruption age. of the union inside of three months.

EIGHT YEARS OF DROUGHT.

Bisastrous Result of Water Scarcity in Dry Region of the Southwest.

The disastrous result of eight years of drought in a region that has only a limited water supply is the most impressive lesson contained in Professional Paper No. 23, recently published by the United States geological survey. "Forest Conditions in the Black Hesa Forest Reserve, Arizona," is the title of the paper, which was prepared by Mr. F. G. Plummer from notes furnished by Messrs. Theodore F. Rixon and Arthur

The reserve comprises an area of 2,786 square miles and includes parts of Yavapai, Coconino, Gila, Navajo, Apache, and Graham counties, Arizona. It is an irregular strip of land running from central Arizona in a general southeasterly direction to the New Mexico boundary. It follows and lies principally on the north slope of the Colorado Gila divide. The character of this divide, known as Black Mesa, is that of a southward-facing escarpment of nearly perpendicular rock, 1,500 to 2,000 feet high, which is inaccessible, except in a few places, to the most daring climber. It is the south edge of the great Colorado plateau. The topography of the reserve is in general rough and broken, though the southeastern portion is more rolling, with several high plateaus.

Water is very scarce. Eight years ago the reserve was comparatively well watered, but successive seasons of drought have rendered it exceedingly dry, and unless a change for the better occurs cattlemen and sheepmen will desert the country. Numerous small areas were once profitably farmed, but in recent years the lack of rainfall has caused a marked decline in agriculture. Grazing, the main industry of this and adjacent regions, has also suffered greatly from continued droughts. The only remaining areas which are used solely for cattle range are on Blue and Salt rivers and Eagle creek. The best growths of wild forage grasses are nearly always found at some distance from water, and are consequently not available for stock which are unable to make the trip from water to pasture.

The Verde slope, in the Beaver creek watershed, is an example of repeated overstocking. This district was formerly a source of great wealth to settlers in that vicinity, but the excessive number of cattle and horses grazed in it has finally resulted in the complete annihilation of the pasture. Unless stringent rules are adopted to regulate the number of stock and the areas on which they shall be grazed on each permit, this condition will sooner or later prevail throughout the reserve.

Yellow pine is the principal timber tree of the reserve and the only lumber at present used for manufacturing purposes. The drought of the last eight says the Jiji Shimpo in an editorial years has affected even trecs like the

A publication that finds a logical place in the library of both the historian and the geographer is a bulletin (No. 226) States and the Several States and Territories, with an Outline of the History of all Important Changes of Territory." which has just been published by the United States geological survey for gratuitous distribution. The author is Mr. Henry Gannett, who prepared this paper in its first form in 1885, when it was published at Bulletin No. 13. A second edition, much ellarged, constituted Bulletin No. 171, published in 1900. The upon him Sunday night by a crowd of present work is therefore a third edi-

Besides giving the present boundaries charter, or statute, Mr. Gannett presents briefly the history, of all important changes of territory and the laws appertaining to those changes. He shows how the boundaries of our country have been affected by the provisional treaty of the United States with Great Britain in 1782, by the treaty with Spain in 1793. 1794, by the treaty of Ghent in 1814, by the treaty with Great Britain in 1842. and by the Webster-Ashburton treaty with Great Britain in 1846.

The additions of territory that have come to the United States and the consequent changes in boundary lines are described. They include the Louisiana purchase, the Florida purchase, the Texas accession, the Mexican cession, the Gadsden purchase, the Alaska purchase and the acquistion of the Hawaiian islands. Porto Rico, Guam, the Philippine islands and Tutuila.

A historical review is given of the changes that have occurred in the public domain. A detailed account is also presented of the way in which the present boundary lines of the various states and territories have been developed. The bulletin, in short, contains in convenient form a great quantity of information that will be useful to the student, teacher, legislator and general

THE BOURBON NEWS.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT. ALTON B. PARKER FOR VICE-PRESIDENT. HENRY G. DAVIS. FOR CONGRESS-HON. SOUTH TRIMBLE. of Franklin County.

In this issue of the NEWS Judge H. C. Smith is announced as a candidate for Representative of Bourbon county in the next Legislature, subject to the action of Democratic party. Judge Smith has been a member of the Fiscal Court since 1883, balls-off Cooper 2, off Hess 3. Struck and has been Judge of Bourbon county for out by Cooper 17, by Hess 4. Umpire, five years. As a Magistrate he was at all times alert to the best interests of the county; as a Judge he has been a consciencious and faithful official, making one of the best Judges that has ever served our people. For more than thirty years he has been a liberal contributor to the Demcratic campaign fund, and for the past f.ve years the largest contributor to that fund in Bourbon county. He is a man well qualified to fill the office to which he aspires, and if elected would represent our county with honor to himself and his con-

The Conditions Different.

This is from the New York Globe, a Republican newspaper of unquestioned party loyaity: "Narrow and short-sighted Republican partisans will doubtless seek to make it the answer of the St. Louis convention thereto alter nothing-that the platform line is certain to be futile, and the more persisted in the more it is calculated to inure rather than to promote President Roosevelt's chances of re-election.

"The political situation is such that disingenuousness is not likely to pay, and his disingenuous to withhold from Judge Parker full credit for his manly act and to argue that his platform has not in fact been amended. Those who praise President Roosevelt for his courage are in no position to belittle courage shown by another, and a country which has long desired that the gold standard should cease to be a football of agitation is disposed to accept at its face value evidence that it is no longer menaced."

And again:

"Judge Parker has done a service not only to his party, but to the nation. The incident shows that honesty in politics still pays; that directness is superior to craft; that adherence to principle is better than tricking subterfuge and shuffling compromise. By a single act revealing that kind of courage which in a crisis is the truest political wisdom, Judge Parker dispersed the mists of indefiniteness which imputation to his repute."

The difference between an editorial expression of this character and those which have appeared on the same subject in Republican newspapers nearer home is due to the fact that the one is meant to appeal to the intelligent, while the others are designed to increase the ignorance and inflame the prejudice of the negro and the Federal office-holder, on which two classes the Republican party in Kentucky relies for its support.

Appreciated Service.

We unintentionally admitted to make mention in our last issue of the prompt and good service given to our citizens, free of charge, by the manager of the Postal Telegraph Company, in this city, during the session of the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis. As fast as the business of the convention proceeded Mr. John McDermott, the popular resident manager, would post a bulletin in front of his office, and by this enterprising manager and company our citizens were kept in close touch with the convention until the nominations were made. This service was highly appreciated and will be remembered by our citizens.

PARKS HILL ASSEMBLY. - Manager Horace Taylor, of Carlisle, was here Saturday, and had just received a telegram from Wm. Jennings Bryan, accepting an invitation to lecture at Park's Hill Assembly, on Saturday, August 6. There will no doubt be a large crowd go down from here to hear this distinguished orator. Sabject announced later.

There was nothing cut and dried about the St. Louis Convention. There was no machine work and no one-man power. It was the voice of the people, demanding political reforms-honesty and faithful service in every department of the government, and justice to rich and poor

A Merry Party.

The teachers and pupils of the Sunday School of the Mission of the Good Shepherd, of Lexington, arrived here Friday morning on an interurban car, and immediately took boats up Stoner to a very picturesque spot, near Maple Island, where they spent the day and enjoyed a bountiful and delightful picnic lunch. There were about fifty children in the party and they were under the care of the Superintendent, Mr. Wm. Warren, and Misses Sue Walby, Mayme Ott, Anna Avery, Louise Welsh, Mary Woolfolk and Rev. Mr. Caswell. The trip was a treat given to the children by the superintendent and teachers of the Sunday School,

T WAS ter the deat her mother that Hermanc hought it well to consider LL Sath possibility of marriage a to die a spinster. She was sessed in her own right of a mou petence, and had a heart full of and generous impulses, but she was formed-in short, a humpback.

Seated alone in her quiet home at Chatillon with pleasant surroundings about her, she considered her lonely future with a shudder. But where to seek for a husband? Whom might she ad-

She knew she did not possess the physical attractions of a young and more perfect beauty; she must confess that one shoulder was higher than the other, and from some words she overheard, she knew herself considered a little angular. But what of this in so loyal a heart? One evening in her daily paper she found this advertisement, which immediately engrossed her attention. The Matrimonial Institute of France, founded by Madame de Saint Elme. This institute has for its object the promotion of honorable marriages, between members of families best fitted both in a physiological and social point of view. Dowries from 2,000 to 2000,000 fraces. Office hours, one to five p. m. Correspondence solicited. And the address followed. Hermance considered this matter that day and again the following day. Finally she said to herself: "I will write to that woman."

And she wrote at once. By return post she received a magnificently printed prospectus, beautifully Ilthographed on rose colored paper, which in a great many words explained, magnified and praised "the moral purpose of the Matrimonial Institute of France."

In conclusion Mme. de St. Elme invited her correspondent to send her the modest sum of two dollars as subscription to the Nuptial Veil, in which would be found a large list of candidates for matrimony, all guaranteed of good social rank, regularly registered and submitted to the choice of readers of both sexes. To be thus registered or to make choice of any name in these lists the further sum of five dollars must be remitted in ad-

Hermance sent, in conformity with the above conditions, the double fee, adding also, as advised in the prospectus, one of her photographs, a little portrait taken the year before. in which there appeared her fine head and neck, full of expression and grace, but showing her only as far as the shoulders.

As she glanced at the long list of possible husbands named in the Nuptial Veil she was embarrassed, there were so many. Marking out 20, these she reduced to 15, and then to 10, and S. She pansed, and then tired of the attempt. she finished by placing her pencil where it would fall, which happened to be No. 12.818, reading thus:

Employment, public; salary 3.500 fracs, with advancement assured; aged 38 years, good health; simple tastes; desires to marry young lady of age and fortune, excellent habits and character.

"Simple tastes," of course it was inipessible to tell what these words might mean, but trusting to the maternal character of the lady at the head of the institute, and forwarding a new check for the additional $10 required, she received a photograph of No. 12,818, with a note giving the name, residence, etc., of the candidate.

His name was Adrien Bastide, and he was a public officer in the little town of Kernoveu, in Brittany. In the picture, which represented him at full length, he appeared a man full of good humor and good will, with a full, open countenance, and a long beard, flowing down his breast. But how tall he was! You might have taken him for a drum major. What a contrast to poor little humpback Mermance!

"Ah, but he is a very good man for me," whispered she to herself.

At the same time that the photograph was sent to Hermance, Mnie, de Saint Elme, always attentive to the interests of her clients, advised No. 12,818 of the distinction which had befallen him, and for a consideration, forwarded the note and portrait of Mlle. Desriguy, who straightway received the following let-

Mademoiselle: While not having the honor of being personally known to you. vet I cannot resist the deep emotion which only one look at your photograph has aroused in me, and to tell you by what all powerful, almost providential, sympathy I am turned to you.

Yes, it seems as if I hear a voice from heaven guiding and leading me to you. It is impossible to look upon a countenance so pure, so open, so frank, on eyes so full of spirit and impossible to deceit. and not to know you have a generous. loving heart.

And the writer of the letters prayed for the opening of a correspondence between them preparatory, if mutually agreeable. to a meeting at some future time.

An exchange of letters now ensued. mate, they confided to one another the stories of their youth, their hopes for the future and how and why they had had reccurse to Mme, de Saint Elme,

Finally the great day came and Hermance was notified that M. Bastide would present himself at her house at two o'clock.

Everything in and around the house had been put in perfect order, and all was ready. Hermance kept repeating to her servant:

"I hear some one coming, Ionette." "Mademoiselle has said that very often."

"Well, don't go to sleep in the porch. and be sure to bring him in-that person -to the parlor."

"Surely, mademoiselle. Don't you fear. I will hide myself in the corridor id run at the first sound of the bell." the bell rang. The visitor, the tall hby major with the long beard, appeared, but limping with one foot, and walking with a cane.

"Mademoiselle Desriguy?" said he. "It is I. Monsieur Bastide," tremblingly answered the little humpback, dropping the book in which she seemed to have been reading.

"You! But! Mademoiselle Hermance Desriguy who wrote to me?" "Yes.

And both stood thunderstruck, facing each other, stupidly gazing without a word.

"But, mademoiselle, you have neveryou ought to have told me." And Hermance replied, her cheeks now grown scarlet:

"Yes I know, I ought to perhaps, but you, you also, monsieur. I was born so -me-no-oh, no. Adleu, monsieur.' And our poor little heroine, wholly confused, her eyes filled with tears, fled away, leaving the room to her visitor, her exfiance. The great giant stood still some minutes. What was there to do? Finally he opened a door into the hall and shuffled back to his hotel. There he seated himself on one of the soft banks of grass. and with eyes mechanically fixed upon the windings of the valley, tried to meditate over the occurrences of the afternoon, and gave himself up to the strange thoughts to which they gave rise. Humpbacked! She was a humpback, and she had said nothing about it. This was the game, a shallow trick, and that maternal directress of the Matrimonial Institute of France, whose only object better acquaintance and to shield them able Sport.

While a Chester trolley was speeding along several miles out of Darby, a few evenings ago, the motorman suddenly slackened the car's speed with a jolt several times. Each time a piece of paper was along the track, says the Philadelphia Record

"On my last trip out a young fellow who was sitting on the front seat lost his Panama," said the motorman to completely at a loss to understand its a friend near his elbow. "I thought. that paper might be it. Yes; he got off to look for it, but maybe he didn't find it, for he didn't know where it blew off. He put the hat on the floor under the seat, rather than hold it in his hand, and after he had gone about four miles he noticed that it had disappeared. There was no way of telling in which one of the four miles it had blown off, so he just got off the car with the intention of walking back the entire distance, unless he would find it

"Maybe it's only a 75-cent Panama anyhow,' 'suggested the motorman's friend, when another white object on the road proved to be paper.

'Well, sometimes we find a mighty good hat," continued the motorman. "More than a few blow off every week. It's a poor summer if I don't find ten or 12 straw hats, and some of them are fine ones. The other motormen do about as well. The best time to find them is on the early morning runs, as the hats are mostly lost at night. Frequently they land in a dark place, and can't be found until daylight Of course, we keep them when we find them. How could we do otherwise, when we never know to whom they belong? The men always jump off the car after their hats blow off, and we never hear from them again."

"Why do more hats blow off at night than during the day?"

"Mostly because more young men ride on the cars at night. They take off their hats to enjoy the breeze. Sometimes the hat is blown out of their laps, and sometimes it is blown off their heads. Often the young man's companion holds his hat for him, and sometimes it blows out of her hands. The few hats that are blown off during the day are easily found."

Phenomena of "Pulsation of Moving Water" Interferes Greatly with Accuracy.

STREAM MEASUREMENTS.

Since 1902, when the United States geological survey published watersupply and irrigation paper, No. 64, entitled "The Accuracy of Stream Measurements," considerable additional data has been collected in regard to this subject. Among these are the results of investigations made by Mr. Edward C. Murphy in the hydraulic laboratory of Cornell university, concerning the flow of small and moderate sized streams and the results of high-water measurements made by him near Oswego, and at Binghamton. This paper also contains a report ments made under ice on streams in the Catskill mountains, which are of special interest, as they are the most extensive series of measurements of this kind which have been made.

The accuracy of the measurement of a stream depends largely upon the accuracy with which the cross-sectional area and the velocity are measured. There is no special difficulty in measuring the first factor, but the second factor is very difficult to determine, chiefly because it is constantly changing. The velocity varies not only from the surface to the bottom of the stream, and from one bank to the other, so that it is necessary to measure it at many points, but is constantly changing at every point, even when the cross-sectional area and the discharge remain constant.

Several experimenters have observed the phenomenon of "pulsation of moving water," and a few have tried to measure it, but as yet little is known of the magnitude and frequency of the pulsations or of the laws governing them. A knowledge of such phenomena is evidently of vital importance in making and computing stream measurements. If only a few observations of velocity are made, these may all, or nearly all, be made at a time of maximum impulse, and thus the measured mean velocity be too large; or it is possible that most of the observations may be made at a time of minimum impulse, and thus the mean velocity be too small.

The investigations made have also an important bearing on the kind of instruments best suited to measure the velocity, as some—the float rod, for example—give the velocity of a single impulse, while others-as the current meter-show the average velocity due to all the impulses during the observation.

The motion of water in an open channel is not, however, simply a succession of impulses. On the contrary, it is exceedingly complex, and is very different from the uniform flow in parallel straight lines that is assumed in deriving the ordinary hydraulic formulas. Under close observation the water of the most undisturbed streams is seen to contain some particles that move up, thers that move down, and still others that move across.

The accuracy of a discharge measurement also depends much upon the physical features of the stream at the discharge section or point of measurement. Seldom are all the conditions favorable for the most accurate work.

Discharge measurements of streams flowing in natural and artificial channels have been made with various kinds of instruments and in many ways. The earlier ones were made with crude instruments and in some cases the surface velocity only was observed, the mean velocity being computed from a formula which we now know is not correct. Very little seems to have been done in the way of determining the degree of accuracy of the measurements. Even when the experimenter has used two or more instruments to measure velocity, he does not appear to have made simultaneous measurements with different instruments, or to have employed different methods with the same instruments, in order to test the accuracy of the results.

These matters are all discussed in detail in Mr. Murphy's paper, which is listed as Water Supply and Irrigation Paper No. 95, and may be obtained on application to the director of the United States geological survey, Washington, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I run across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bettles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—MISS ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Study Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says: -

"DEAR Mrs. PINKHAM: - I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit. "A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found

"Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for sometime."

ible for us to make it that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low, - all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and without hope for the future, when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering - all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women. 55000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
